Important Disclosures

Year-end tax information

The mortgage interest in box 1 of Form 1098 is the amount of interest you paid during the year. If you and another person shared the loan, only your share of the interest is deductible. Points, if any, are reported in box 6. Real estate taxes paid from escrow are reported on this statement and may be deductible separately, subject to the state and local tax limit.

Escrow account

Your monthly payment includes an amount for escrow to pay real estate taxes and homeowner's insurance. We perform an annual analysis of your escrow account. If the analysis shows a surplus or shortage, your monthly payment may be adjusted and any surplus over $50 refunded as required by RESPA.

Escrow	Funds collected with your payment to pay taxes and insurance when due.
Amortization	The gradual repayment of principal over the life of the loan through scheduled payments.
Acquisition debt	Debt used to buy, build, or substantially improve your home, the interest on which may be deductible.

Mortgage Servicing Disclosures

Notice of error and request for information

If you believe an error has occurred or you would like more information about your loan, you may send a written notice of error or request for information to the address designated for that purpose. We will acknowledge your correspondence within five business days and respond within the timeframes required by applicable law.

Transfer of servicing

The servicing of your loan — that is, the right to collect your payments — may be assigned, sold, or transferred. If your loan servicing is transferred, you will be notified at least 15 days before the effective date, and you will have a 60-day grace period during which a payment to your old servicer will not be treated as late.

Hazard and force-placed insurance

You are required to maintain hazard insurance on the property. If we do not receive evidence of coverage, we may purchase force-placed insurance at your expense, which may be more expensive and provide less coverage than a policy you obtain yourself.

Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (SCRA)

Servicemembers on active duty, and their dependents, may be entitled to certain protections under the SCRA, including interest-rate limits and protections against foreclosure. Contact us or a legal assistance office for more information.

Partial payments

Payments that are less than the full amount due may be held in a suspense account until sufficient funds are received to make a full payment, at which point the funds are applied to your loan. Holding partial payments in suspense does not change the date your payment is considered received.

Error Resolution and Complaint Procedures

How to submit a notice of error or information request

Send a written notice to the designated address that includes your name, loan number, and a description of the error or the information you are requesting. Do not include such notices with your payment; they must be sent to the designated address to be effective. We will respond within the timeframes required by federal mortgage servicing rules.

Additional Servicing Disclosures

Application of payments. Your payments are applied first to accrued interest, then to principal, then to escrow, and finally to any fees or other charges, unless otherwise required by law. Additional principal payments may be made at any time and should be clearly designated.

Escrow shortage and surplus. Each year we analyze your escrow account. If the analysis projects a shortage, you may pay it in a lump sum or spread it over the next twelve months. A surplus of $50 or more is generally refunded to you within 30 days, as required by the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act.

Property insurance requirements. You must maintain adequate hazard insurance naming the servicer as mortgagee. If your policy lapses, we may obtain force-placed insurance at your expense, which is typically more expensive and may provide less protection than a policy you obtain yourself.

Flood insurance. If your property is determined to be in a special flood hazard area, federal law requires flood insurance. We will notify you if a determination changes and flood insurance becomes required.

Property taxes. When taxes are escrowed, we pay them from your escrow account as they come due. You remain responsible for ensuring taxes are paid; review your annual escrow statement and your local tax bills.

Your Rights Under Federal Law

Right to a payoff statement. You may request a statement of the total amount required to pay off your loan as of a specified date. We will provide it within the time required by law.

Right to dispute and request information. You may submit a written notice of error or a request for information to the designated address. We will acknowledge within five business days and respond within the timeframes required by the mortgage servicing rules.

Equal Credit Opportunity Act. The federal Equal Credit Opportunity Act prohibits creditors from discriminating against credit applicants on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, marital status, age, or because income derives from a public assistance program.

Fair Credit Reporting. We may report information about your account to credit bureaus. You have the right to dispute the accuracy of information we report. Late payments and defaults may be reflected in your credit report.

Do-not-call and communications. You may have the right to limit certain communications. Contact us to update your communication preferences. We may still send legally required notices.

Assistance and Loss Mitigation

If you are having trouble paying. Contact us as early as possible. Depending on your circumstances, options may include a repayment plan, forbearance, loan modification, or other assistance. Acting early gives you the most options.

Housing counseling. HUD-approved housing counseling agencies provide free or low-cost assistance. You can find a counselor through the HUD website or by calling the HUD housing counseling line.

Foreclosure prevention. We will not begin a foreclosure referral while a complete loss-mitigation application is under review, subject to the protections of applicable law. Foreclosure is a last resort.

Successors in interest. If you acquired an interest in the property through inheritance, divorce, or similar circumstances, you may be a successor in interest with certain rights even if you are not named on the loan. Contact us for the documentation required to be confirmed.

Tax Reporting and Recordkeeping

Form 1098. We report the mortgage interest you paid during the year on Form 1098 to you and to the IRS. Real estate taxes paid from escrow are shown on your annual statement but are not part of the Form 1098 interest amount.

Mortgage interest deduction limits. Home mortgage interest is generally deductible on acquisition debt up to the applicable limit. Interest on amounts above the limit, or on debt not used to buy, build, or improve your home, may not be fully deductible. Consult your tax advisor.

Points. Points paid to obtain a mortgage may be deductible, either in full in the year paid for certain purchase loans or ratably over the life of the loan. No points were paid this year.

Keep your records. Retain this statement, your closing documents, and records of any improvements to your home. Improvement records increase your cost basis and can reduce taxable gain when you sell.

Credit reporting

We may report information about your account to credit bureaus. Late payments, missed payments, or other defaults on your account may be reflected in your credit report. If you believe we have reported inaccurate information, you may contact us to dispute it.
