Note: Social security tax is withheld at 6.2% on social-security wages until your year-to-date social-security wages reach the annual wage base ($176,100 for 2026); on this wage level you remain below the cap for the full year, so the 6.2% rate applies in every period. The HSA cafeteria election (Code W) and the section 125 medical premium are excluded from both federal income tax and FICA wages; the 401(k) deferral is excluded from federal and state income tax but remains subject to social security and Medicare tax.

Cafeteria HSA contributions are shown above as a pre-tax deduction and are reported on your Form W-2 in box 12 with code W. Direct (out-of-pocket) HSA contributions you make outside payroll are not reflected on this statement and are reported by your HSA custodian on Form 5498-SA.

Definitions and Notes

Gross pay — total earnings before any deductions, including regular and overtime wages.

Pre-tax deduction — an amount subtracted from gross pay before certain taxes are calculated. The taxes a deduction is exempt from are shown in the Pre-tax column.

FICA-taxable wages — the wage base used to compute social security and Medicare taxes for the period (gross less section 125 medical and Code W HSA; 401(k) is NOT subtracted).

FIT-taxable wages — the wage base used to estimate federal income tax withholding for the period (FICA-taxable wages less the 401(k) deferral).

Net pay — gross pay less all deductions; the amount deposited to your bank account.

YTD — cumulative total for the calendar year through the current pay date.

Federal Tax Withholding Notice

The federal income tax withheld each period is an estimate based on the Form W-4 on file, your filing status, and any dependents or other adjustments you claimed. Because you claimed credits for dependents on your Form W-4, your per-period federal withholding is reduced accordingly.

Withholding is not the same as your final tax liability. If too little is withheld over the year, you may owe a balance when you file; if too much is withheld, you receive a refund. Review your Form W-4 after any major change (marriage, a new child, a second job, or a large one-time payment) and whenever you have a balance due at filing.

Pre-tax elections shown on this statement (401(k), section 125 medical, and the Code W HSA cafeteria contribution) reduce the wages on which federal income tax is withheld.

Reading the Tax Lines on Your Stub

Social Security is withheld at 6.2% of social-security wages up to the annual wage base. Medicare is withheld at 1.45% of all Medicare wages, with an additional 0.9% on wages above the applicable threshold. These rates are applied to each period's wages, not to an annual average.

Indiana state income tax is withheld at the flat state rate, and Allen County income tax is withheld at the county rate, both applied to your state/county taxable wages for the period.

If you believe an amount is incorrect, contact payroll before the next pay date so corrections can be reflected on your year-end Form W-2.
