These amounts represent the portion of 2025 medical and dental expenses paid out of pocket and NOT reimbursed by insurance or any HSA distribution. Documentation for each item (provider statements and EOBs) follows.

Why this matters for taxes: Unreimbursed medical expenses that exceed 7.5% of adjusted gross income are relevant to (a) the itemized medical deduction on Schedule A, and (b) the exception to the 10% additional tax on early retirement-plan distributions (Form 5329, exception number 05). The Form 5329 exception is available even if you take the standard deduction.

Notes and Substantiation

All amounts shown as 'you paid' were paid by cash, check, or personal debit/credit during the 2025 calendar year and were not reimbursed by insurance, a flexible spending account, or a health savings account distribution.

Qualified medical expenses generally include amounts paid for the diagnosis, cure, mitigation, treatment, or prevention of disease, as described in IRS Publication 502. The items above consist of hospital, physician, dental, vision, and prescription costs that meet this definition.

For tax purposes, only the portion of total unreimbursed medical expenses exceeding 7.5% of adjusted gross income is taken into account. Calculate 7.5% of your AGI from your return to determine the qualifying amount.

This summary is a compilation for convenience and is not itself a tax form. Use the underlying provider statements and your insurance EOBs as primary substantiation.
