Form 8889 Guidance

Employer and cafeteria-plan (Code W) amounts are already excluded from your W-2 wages and are NOT deductible again. Your post-tax DIRECT contributions of $2,400.00 are an above-the-line deduction that flows to Schedule 1.

Confirm total contributions do not exceed the annual limit to avoid a 6% excise tax on excess contributions.

HSA Eligibility, Form 8889 Walkthrough & Qualified Expenses

To contribute to an HSA you must be covered by a qualifying high-deductible health plan (HDHP), have no disqualifying coverage, not be enrolled in Medicare, and not be claimed as a dependent. This account is reported as self-only HDHP coverage for the full year.

Form 8889 walkthrough: Line 2 is the amount YOU contributed directly (not through your employer) - this is the deductible amount that flows to Schedule 1. Line 9 is employer and cafeteria-plan (Code W) contributions, which are already excluded from your W-2 wages and are NOT deducted again on Line 13. Line 3 is your contribution limit; Line 11 subtracts employer amounts to cap your deduction.

Excess contributions above the annual limit are subject to a 6% excise tax each year until withdrawn; remove any excess (and related earnings) before the filing deadline.

- Qualified medical expenses: deductibles, copays, prescriptions, dental, and vision.
- Distributions used for qualified expenses are tax-free and reported on Form 8889 Part II.
- Non-qualified distributions are taxable and (before age 65) subject to a 20% penalty.
- Keep receipts; you may reimburse yourself in a later year for expenses paid out of pocket.
- 2025 self-only contribution limit shown above; family and age-55 catch-up limits differ.

Important Information About This Document

This document is part of a personal financial records package assembled for a year-end review. Figures shown on earlier pages are the source-of-record values; the explanatory material that follows is provided to help you interpret those figures and prepare an accurate income-tax return. Where a number on this document appears to conflict with another statement, reconcile to the originating institution's reported amount and document any adjustment on the appropriate tax form.

Retain every page of this package together. Tax positions frequently depend on reading two or more documents in combination - for example, matching a brokerage Form 1099-B to an employer stock-plan supplemental, or combining wage statements from more than one employer to determine social security and Medicare reconciliations.

Definitions of Common Terms

The following terms appear throughout this records package and on the related tax forms.

Adjusted gross income (AGI): total income minus specific above-the-line adjustments.

Cost basis: the amount used to determine gain or loss on the sale of an asset; for equity compensation it includes income already taxed as wages.

Covered vs noncovered security: whether the broker is required to report basis to the IRS.

Elective deferral: pre-tax salary contributed to a 401(k); subject to an annual limit that applies across ALL employers combined.

Marginal vs effective rate: the rate on your last dollar versus your average rate overall.

Safe harbor: the minimum prior- or current-year payment that avoids an underpayment penalty.

Electronic Delivery, Access, and Recordkeeping

You have elected, or may elect, to receive these documents electronically. Electronic documents are legally equivalent to paper and should be downloaded and stored securely for at least the period during which the related tax return remains open to examination, generally three to seven years depending on circumstances.

Access to prior-period documents may be available through your online account portal. If a figure has been corrected after issuance, a revised document will be made available and will supersede the original; always file using the most recent corrected version.

Error Resolution and Your Rights

If you believe this document contains an error, contact HealthEquity promptly. Many error-resolution rights are time-limited, and delays can affect both your records and any related tax filing.

- Describe the suspected error in writing and include the account or document identifier.
- Continue to meet any payment or filing obligations while a dispute is investigated.
- Keep copies of all correspondence and note the date and method of each contact.
- Corrected tax documents may require you to amend a return already filed.

Privacy Notice

HealthEquity collects nonpublic personal information in the course of providing products and services and protects that information using administrative, technical, and physical safeguards. Information may be shared as permitted by law to service your account, to comply with legal and regulatory obligations, and to prevent fraud.

You may have the right to limit certain sharing. This synthetic records package contains no real personal data; identifiers shown are masked and formatted for evaluation only.

Regulatory and Tax Disclosures

The amounts reported on tax forms within this package are also furnished to the relevant tax authorities where required. You are responsible for the accuracy of your return even when it relies on figures reported by third parties.
