General Instructions

Purpose of form. Use Form 2120 if you are claiming as a dependent someone for whom you, together with others, provided more than half of the support, but for whom you alone did not provide more than half. Each other person who provided more than 10% of the support and who could have claimed the dependent must sign a statement agreeing not to claim that person; you keep those statements and attach this form to your return.

Eligible person. An eligible person is one who could have claimed the individual as a dependent except that he or she did not pay more than half of the individual's support. List each eligible person who paid more than 10%. If there are more than four, attach a statement.

Specific instructions. Enter your name and SSN exactly as shown on your return. Enter the name and SSN of the person you are claiming. List each eligible person's name, address, and SSN. Keep each signed waiver statement with your records; do not file the statements with your return.

Instructions for Form 2120 — Multiple Support Agreement (reference)

Multiple support agreement

You can claim a person who did not receive more than half of his or her support from any one person if all of the following apply: (a) you and one or more other eligible persons together paid more than half of the support; (b) you paid more than 10% of the support; (c) no one alone paid more than half; and (d) each other eligible person who paid more than 10% signs a statement agreeing not to claim the person for the year.

Figuring support

Support includes amounts spent for food, lodging, clothing, education, medical and dental care, recreation, transportation, and similar necessities. To determine the percentage you provided, compare what you contributed with the total support the person received from all sources, including the person's own funds actually used for support. See the Worksheet for Determining Support in Pub. 501.

Gross income test

To be a qualifying relative, the person's gross income for the year must be less than the amount specified in Pub. 501. Gross income is all income in the form of money, property, and services that is not exempt from tax. Certain items, such as tax-exempt social security benefits, are not counted; see Pub. 501 and Pub. 915.

Recordkeeping

Keep Form 2120 and the signed statements with your records. Retain documentation of the support provided — receipts, canceled checks, and a support log — in case the dependency claim is examined.

F-7. Shared-expense arrangement notes

Lodging

The fair rental value of the parent's share of the residence is paid principally by Marisol Vega-Holloway, who maintains the home; the siblings contribute periodically toward repairs and upkeep.

Food

Groceries and household consumables are pooled monthly among the three children, with a portion paid from the parent's own funds.

Medical, dental and pharmacy

Out-of-pocket amounts not covered by Medicare or the parent's supplemental coverage. The amount shown for Marisol Vega-Holloway corresponds to the itemized provider statements retained in the household medical-billing records.

Clothing, transportation, utilities, recreation

Periodic contributions toward clothing, transportation to medical appointments, the parent's share of utilities, and recreation, shared among the siblings and the parent's own funds as recorded above.

F-8. Methodology — what counts as support (Pub. 501)

Support includes the amounts spent to provide food, lodging, clothing, education, medical and dental care, recreation, transportation, and similar necessities for the person. The total support figures in this log are the amounts actually spent for these items during 2025 by all sources, including the parent's own funds.

Lodging is measured by the fair rental value of the room or share of the dwelling provided to the parent, including a reasonable allowance for furnishings and utilities. The lodging amount in table F-1 reflects the fair rental value of the parent's share of the residence she occupied for the full year.

Amounts a person receives but does not spend on his or her own support are not counted as support that person provided.

Tax-exempt income, such as certain social security benefits, that is actually used for support is counted in total support, but is treated as support provided by the person whose funds were used (here recorded under "Dolores Vega (own funds)").

To determine the percentage each contributor provided, compare the amount that contributor paid with the total support from all sources. The amounts needed for that comparison are recorded in tables F-1 through F-5 and in the itemized register; this log does not itself state any conclusion about the comparison.

Member of household or relationship test

The person either lived with the taxpayer all year as a member of the household, or is related in one of the ways listed in Pub. 501 (e.g., a parent), in which case the person need not live with the taxpayer.
