Each period's Social Security tax equals 6.2% of period wages subject to FICA, Medicare equals 1.45%, and California SDI equals 1.20%, computed on wages reduced by the Section 125 medical deduction. Cumulative Social Security wages remain below the 2026 wage base, so Social Security is withheld in every period.

Employer Social Security and Medicare match the amounts withheld from the employee. Federal unemployment (FUTA) and California unemployment and employment training taxes apply only to the first $7,000 of wages and are therefore fully accrued early in the year. Health-insurance amounts are the employer's share of the group premium.
