Tax documents you will receive

Document	Purpose
Form W-2 (Copies B, C, 2)	Report wages and withholding on your federal and state returns
This earnings packet	Your records of pay, deductions, benefits, and leave

About this packet

Your gross salary is paid in 24 equal semimonthly installments. Each installment is reduced by your pre-tax retirement deferral and pre-tax health insurance premium before federal and District of Columbia income tax is withheld, and by Social Security and Medicare taxes computed on the applicable wage bases. The pages that follow show your Form W-2, each of your 24 earnings statements, a year-to-date ledger of every pay period, and summaries of your benefits, leave, and the employer-paid cost of your employment.

Instructions for Employee

Box 1 — Wages, tips, other compensation. Enter this amount on the wages line of your Form 1040. It is your total taxable wages after pre-tax deductions such as your retirement deferral and pre-tax health premiums.

Box 2 — Federal income tax withheld. Enter on the federal income tax withheld line of your return. This is the amount your employer withheld based on your Form W-4 elections.

Box 3 and Box 4 — Social Security wages and tax. Box 3 is capped at the annual Social Security wage base of $176,100 for 2025; Box 4 is 6.2% of Box 3, a maximum of $10,918.20.

Box 5 and Box 6 — Medicare wages and tax. Medicare wages have no cap. Box 6 includes 1.45% on all Medicare wages plus, where applicable, the 0.9% Additional Medicare Tax on wages above $200,000.

Tax withholding methodology

Federal income tax withholding is computed each pay period using the percentage method based on your Form W-4 elections. District of Columbia withholding uses the District's withholding tables and your Form D-4. Social Security and Medicare taxes are withheld at the statutory rates. To change your withholding, submit a revised Form W-4 or Form D-4 to payroll; changes take effect within one to two pay periods.

Form W-2 — Complete Instructions for Employee

General. You should receive your Form W-2 by January 31. If your name, Social Security number, or any amount is incorrect, ask your employer to issue a corrected Form W-2c. Keep Copy C of Form W-2 for at least three years after the due date for filing your income tax return. Report your wages and withholding on your federal income tax return; if you have wages from more than one employer, combine the box 1 amounts on the wages line of your return.

Box 1. Shows your total taxable wages, tips, prizes, and other compensation, before any payroll deductions. This amount does not include elective deferrals to retirement plans (box 12 code D), pre-tax benefits, or other reductions. Enter this amount on the wages line of your tax return.

Box 2. Shows the total federal income tax withheld from your pay for the year. Include this amount on the federal income tax withheld line of your return. If too little was withheld, you may owe additional tax; if too much was withheld, you may receive a refund. Adjust future withholding by filing a new Form W-4 with your employer.

Boxes 3 and 4. Box 3 shows the wages subject to Social Security tax, up to the annual wage base ($176,100 for 2025). Box 4 shows the Social Security tax withheld, which is 6.2% of box 3 and cannot exceed $10,918.20 for 2025. If you had two or more employers and too much Social Security tax was withheld in total, you may claim the excess as a credit on your return.

Boxes 5 and 6. Box 5 shows wages subject to Medicare tax, with no wage cap. Box 6 shows the Medicare tax withheld: 1.45% of box 5, plus an Additional Medicare Tax of 0.9% on Medicare wages over $200,000 (regardless of filing status) for withholding purposes. Depending on your filing status and total wages, you may owe Additional Medicare Tax computed on a separate form when you file.

Box 12. Reports various types of compensation and benefits using a letter code. Code D is an elective deferral to a 401(k) cash-or-deferred arrangement, including the federal Thrift Savings Plan. These deferrals reduce box 1 wages but are included in boxes 3 and 5. Other codes report items such as employer-sponsored health coverage (DD), which is informational and not taxable.

Box 13. The 'Retirement plan' box is checked if you were an active participant in an employer-sponsored retirement plan during the year. This may limit the amount of traditional IRA contributions you can deduct. The 'Statutory employee' and 'Third-party sick pay' boxes do not apply to you.

Box 14. Your employer may use this box to report additional information, such as the amount of your retirement plan contribution, after-tax deductions, or state-specific items. These amounts are generally informational.

Boxes 15 through 20. Report state and local wage and tax information. Box 15 shows the state and the employer's state identification number; box 16 shows state wages; box 17 shows state income tax withheld. Report these on your state income tax return. No local income tax applies in the District of Columbia for this employee, so boxes 18 through 20 are blank or zero.

Credit for excess Social Security tax. If you worked for more than one employer in 2025 and your combined Social Security wages exceeded the wage base, more than the maximum Social Security tax may have been withheld. You can claim the excess as a refundable credit against your income tax when you file your return.

Understanding Your Earnings Statement

Earnings. The 'Regular salary' line shows your gross pay for the period (one twenty-fourth of your annual salary) and the year-to-date total. Your rate and standard hours are shown for reference.

Taxes. Federal and District of Columbia income taxes are withheld based on your Form W-4 and Form D-4 elections. Social Security tax is 6.2% of your period wages until your year-to-date Social Security wages reach the annual wage base, after which no further Social Security tax is withheld. Medicare tax is 1.45% of your period wages with no cap.

Pre-tax deductions. Your retirement deferral and health insurance premium are deducted before income tax is calculated, lowering your taxable wages. Your retirement deferral is still subject to Social Security and Medicare tax.

Net pay. Net pay is your gross pay minus all taxes and deductions, deposited to your bank account on the pay date. Compare your net pay to your bank deposit to confirm it was received.

Year-to-date columns. Each statement shows both the current-period amount and the cumulative year-to-date amount for every line, so you can track your earnings, taxes, and deductions throughout the year.

Frequently asked payroll questions

Q. Why did my Social Security tax stop part-way through the year?

A. Once your year-to-date Social Security wages reach the wage base of $176,100, no further Social Security tax is withheld for the rest of the year. Medicare tax continues on all wages because Medicare has no wage base.

Q. Why is my Box 1 wage lower than my salary?

A. Your pre-tax retirement deferral and pre-tax health insurance premiums are subtracted before federal taxable wages are calculated, so Box 1 is lower than your gross salary.

Q. How do I change my withholding?

A. Submit a new Form W-4 for federal withholding or Form D-4 for District of Columbia withholding to the payroll office. Changes generally take effect within one to two pay periods.

Q. My net pay changed even though my salary did not. Why?

A. Net pay can change when your Social Security tax stops after reaching the wage base, when a benefit election changes, or when withholding elections change.

Q. Who do I contact about an error on my W-2?

A. Contact the payroll office promptly. If a correction is needed after the W-2 has been issued, your employer will provide a corrected Form W-2c.

Additional payroll questions

Q. What is the difference between gross pay and net pay?

A. Gross pay is your total earnings before any deductions. Net pay is what remains after taxes and pre-tax and post-tax deductions, and is the amount deposited to your bank account.

Q. Are my retirement contributions taxed?

A. Traditional retirement deferrals are not subject to federal or state income tax in the year contributed, but they are subject to Social Security and Medicare tax. They are taxed when distributed in retirement.

Q. What does the retirement plan box on my W-2 mean for my IRA?

A. Being an active participant in an employer plan can reduce or eliminate the deductibility of traditional IRA contributions depending on your income and filing status. See IRS Publication 590-A.

Q. How is my District of Columbia withholding determined?

A. DC withholding is computed each pay period using the District's withholding tables based on your Form D-4 elections, applied to your wages after pre-tax deductions.

Q. When will I receive my Form W-2?

A. Employers must furnish Form W-2 by January 31. This packet includes your Form W-2 along with your full-year earnings detail.
