Notice to Employee — District of Columbia Wage Requirements

Wage payment. This notice is provided under the District of Columbia Wage Theft Prevention Amendment Act. Your employer is Okonkwo-Bauer Household. Wages are paid semimonthly by direct deposit on the 6th and 21st of each month. Your rate of pay and pay schedule are stated in your employment agreement.

Pay statements. You receive an itemized statement each pay date showing your gross wages, the amounts withheld for Social Security and Medicare taxes, and your net pay. Keep your statements for your records.

Minimum wage and overtime. District of Columbia law sets a minimum wage and overtime requirements. As a live-out domestic worker, your hours and compensation are recorded; discuss any questions about classification, overtime, or hours with your employer.

Sick and safe leave. District of Columbia law provides for paid sick and safe leave. Accrued leave and usage are tracked in your records and reflected in the time and attendance record.

Workplace protections. You are entitled to a workplace free from discrimination and harassment. Concerns may be raised with your employer or with the District of Columbia Office of Human Rights.

Household Employment Policies

Schedule and duties. The employee provides full-time childcare and related household support on a Monday-through-Friday schedule of approximately 45 hours per week, with occasional agreed adjustments.

Paid time off. The employee accrues paid vacation and paid sick leave as described in the employment agreement, and receives paid time off on the household's designated holidays.

Reimbursement of expenses. Pre-approved expenses incurred on behalf of the children, including mileage for transportation, are reimbursed. Reimbursements are not wages and are not included in taxable compensation.

Confidentiality. The employee maintains the confidentiality of the family's personal information. This obligation continues after employment ends.

Changes to employment. Any change to pay, schedule, or duties will be documented and acknowledged by both the employer and the employee. Either party may end the employment relationship consistent with the employment agreement and applicable law.
