Tax reporting

A consolidated Form 1099 (including Forms 1099-DIV, 1099-INT, and 1099-B) will be furnished for this account for the tax year. Cost basis for covered securities is reported to the IRS; for noncovered securities, only proceeds are reported and you are responsible for determining the basis.

SIPC protection

Securities in your account are protected up to $500,000 (including up to $250,000 for claims for cash) by the Securities Investor Protection Corporation (SIPC). SIPC protection does not protect against a decline in the market value of your securities. For more information, including a brochure, visit www.sipc.org.

How to read your statement

Market values are based on the closing price on the last business day of the period. Accrued interest, where shown, is included in income only when received. Dividend reinvestments increase your share quantity and your cost basis. Please review your statement and report any discrepancy within 10 days.

Important information about your account

Meridian Brokerage Services LLC is a member of FINRA and SIPC. Brokerage services are provided on a self-directed basis; Meridian Brokerage Services LLC does not provide tax or legal advice. Consult your tax advisor regarding the tax consequences of transactions in your account. Past performance is not a guarantee of future results.

Glossary and Account Notices

Covered security	A security for which the broker must report cost basis to the IRS (generally acquired after 2010/2011/2012 depending on type).
Noncovered security	A security for which basis is not reported to the IRS; the taxpayer must determine and report basis.
Qualified dividend	A dividend that meets holding-period requirements and is taxed at long-term capital gain rates.
Exempt-interest dividend	A distribution from a municipal bond fund that is exempt from federal income tax (reported in 1099-INT box 8).
Realized gain/loss	The gain or loss recognized when a security is sold, equal to proceeds minus cost basis.
Cost basis methods	Default method is first-in, first-out (FIFO) unless another method was elected before settlement.

Cost basis method election

Your account uses the first-in, first-out (FIFO) cost basis method for determining which shares are sold unless you elected a different method (such as specific identification) before the settlement date of a sale. To change your default method, contact us in writing.

Householding and electronic delivery

You are enrolled in electronic delivery of statements, trade confirmations, and tax documents. You may change your delivery preferences or request paper copies at any time. Multiple accounts at the same address may receive a single combined mailing of certain shareholder materials.

Additional Regulatory Disclosures

Order routing and execution (SEC Rule 606)

A quarterly report on the routing of non-directed customer orders is available, disclosing the venues to which customer orders were routed for execution and the nature of any payment-for-order-flow arrangements. A copy of the most recent report, and the identity of the venue to which your individual orders were routed for the prior six months, is available on request at no charge.

Business continuity plan

Meridian Brokerage Services LLC maintains a business continuity plan addressing significant business disruptions. Depending on the severity of the disruption, we will move operations to an alternate site, recover books and records, and resume business promptly. If you cannot reach us at our primary number, please call our alternate line published on our website.

Margin disclosure

This account is a cash account and is not approved for margin. Margin borrowing involves risk and is not suitable for all investors. If margin were later enabled, you could lose more funds than you deposit, and the firm could sell securities in your account without contacting you to meet a margin call.

Money market fund disclosure

You could lose money by investing in a money market fund. Although a government money market fund seeks to preserve a stable $1.00 share price, it cannot guarantee it will do so. An investment in a money market fund is not insured or guaranteed by the FDIC or any other government agency.

Extended-hours trading risk

Trading during extended hours carries unique risks, including lower liquidity, higher volatility, changing prices, and wider spreads. Orders placed during extended hours may not be executed or may be executed at prices materially different from the regular-session price.

Account protection and free credit balances

Free credit balances are funds payable to you on demand which, although properly accounted for on our books, are not segregated and may be used in the conduct of our business. Securities are held in custody and protected as described in the SIPC notice.

Important Tax Information

Exempt-interest dividends and state taxation

Exempt-interest dividends from the municipal bond fund are exempt from federal income tax. A portion may be subject to state income tax depending on your state of residence and the source of the underlying bonds. A breakdown of income by state is available in the fund's year-end tax information.

Foreign tax paid

The international equity fund may have paid foreign taxes on dividends. Any foreign tax shown on your Form 1099-DIV may be claimed as a credit or deduction on your federal return, subject to limitations. No foreign tax credit information is reported where amounts are de minimis.

Cost basis reporting

We report adjusted cost basis for covered securities to the IRS on Form 1099-B. Wash-sale adjustments, if any, are reflected in the reported basis. You remain responsible for reporting the correct gain or loss, including for any noncovered lots.

Backup withholding

No backup withholding was applied to your account during the year. Backup withholding at the statutory rate applies only if a valid taxpayer identification number is not on file or if required by the IRS.

Privacy Notice

Meridian Brokerage Services LLC collects nonpublic personal information about you from account applications and your transactions with us. We do not sell your personal information. We may share information with affiliated and nonaffiliated third parties as permitted by law to service your account, process transactions, and comply with legal and regulatory requirements. We maintain physical, electronic, and procedural safeguards to protect your information. You may request a copy of our full privacy policy at any time.

Householding of shareholder documents

To reduce mail volume and expense, we may deliver a single copy of certain shareholder documents to investors sharing an address. You may request separate copies at no charge by contacting us.

Brokerage Account Disclosures

Order routing and payment for order flow. We route customer orders to various market centers for execution and may receive payment for order flow. A report describing our routing practices and any such payments is available quarterly under SEC Rule 606, and the venue to which your specific orders were routed for the prior six months is available on request.

Best execution. We seek to obtain best execution of customer orders, considering price, speed, likelihood of execution, and other factors. Best execution does not require obtaining the best price on every individual order.

Extended-hours trading. Trading outside regular market hours involves additional risks, including lower liquidity, higher volatility, changing prices, wider spreads, and the risk that news announcements may cause prices to move significantly.

Margin and short sales. This account is a cash account and is not approved for margin or short selling. Margin borrowing and short sales involve substantial risk, including the potential to lose more than your initial investment.

Money market funds. An investment in a money market fund is not a bank deposit and is not insured or guaranteed by the FDIC or any government agency. Although a government money market fund seeks to maintain a stable share price, it is possible to lose money.

Proxy voting and shareholder communications. As a holder of securities, you are entitled to receive proxy materials and to vote your shares. We forward shareholder communications and provide a means to vote unless you have elected otherwise.

Business continuity. We maintain a business continuity plan to address significant business disruptions. Depending on severity, we will transfer operations to backup facilities and resume business as quickly as reasonably possible.

SIPC protection. Securities in your account are protected by the Securities Investor Protection Corporation up to applicable limits, including a sublimit for cash. SIPC does not protect against a decline in market value. Additional information is available at www.sipc.org.

Free credit balances. Cash awaiting investment is held as a free credit balance or swept to the designated money market fund. Free credit balances are payable to you on demand and may be used by the firm in the ordinary course of business.

Account transfers. You may transfer your account to another firm. Transfers are generally processed through an automated system and typically take several business days once initiated by the receiving firm.

Fees, Householding, and Privacy

Account fees. This self-directed account is not charged an advisory fee. Transaction, account-service, and other fees, if any, are described in the fee schedule available on our website and are disclosed on trade confirmations.

Householding. To reduce duplicate mailings, we may send a single copy of certain shareholder documents to investors who share an address. You may request separate copies at no charge.

Privacy. We collect nonpublic personal information about you from account applications and your transactions. We do not sell your personal information and share it only as permitted by law to service your account and comply with legal requirements. We maintain safeguards to protect your information.

Electronic delivery. You are enrolled in electronic delivery of statements, confirmations, and tax documents. You may change your delivery preferences or withdraw consent at any time.

Complaints. To file a complaint, contact our client services department in writing. Unresolved disputes may be subject to the arbitration provisions of your account agreement.

Extended glossary

Bid / ask	The highest price a buyer will pay and the lowest a seller will accept; the difference is the spread.
Limit order	An order to buy or sell at a specified price or better.
Market order	An order to buy or sell promptly at the best available price.
Settlement date	The date on which a trade is finalized and ownership transfers, generally one business day after the trade for most securities.
Sweep	The automatic movement of uninvested cash into a designated money market fund or bank deposit.
Total return	The change in value of an investment including price change and reinvested income, expressed as a percentage.

Performance, Risk, and Year-End Planning

Performance reporting. Performance figures are time-weighted and net of any fees charged to the account. Past performance does not guarantee future results. Market values reflect closing prices on the last business day of the period.

Diversification and concentration. A diversified portfolio spreads risk across asset classes and securities. Review your holdings periodically; a single position that grows to a large share of your portfolio increases concentration risk.

Tax-loss harvesting. Selling a position at a loss can offset realized gains and, within limits, ordinary income. Be mindful of the wash sale rule, which disallows a loss if you repurchase the same or a substantially identical security within 30 days.

Rebalancing. Over time, market movements can shift your allocation away from your targets. Rebalancing — selling appreciated positions and buying underweight ones — can restore your target allocation but may have tax consequences in a taxable account.

Capital gains from sales. Selling appreciated securities in a taxable account realizes a capital gain that may be taxable in the year of sale. Consider the tax cost of trimming a concentrated or appreciated position as part of your overall plan.

Account Agreement Highlights and Notices

Customer agreement. Your account is governed by the customer agreement you accepted when opening the account, which contains important terms including the predispute arbitration clause, the firm's lien on assets, and the terms governing electronic delivery and order handling.

Predispute arbitration. The customer agreement contains a predispute arbitration clause. By signing it, the parties agree to resolve most disputes through binding arbitration rather than in court; you retain the right to bring an individual claim in small-claims court where eligible.

Important risk disclosure. All investments involve risk, including the possible loss of principal. Diversification and asset allocation do not ensure a profit or protect against loss. Consider your objectives, time horizon, and risk tolerance before investing.

Updating your information. Keep your contact information, financial profile, and investment objectives current. Notify us promptly of any change so we can maintain accurate records and communicate with you about your account.

How to reach us. Client services is available by phone and through secure online messaging. For tax-document questions, contact the tax reporting department. Written correspondence may be sent to the address on the first page of this statement.

Tax documents. A consolidated Form 1099 reporting this account's dividends, interest, and proceeds is furnished separately for use in preparing your return.

Review your statement. Please review this statement promptly and report any discrepancy. Verify that holdings, transactions, and income match your records.

Keep your records. Retain this statement and your trade confirmations with your tax records; cost basis records are needed to compute gain or loss when you sell.

Questions. Contact client services at the number on the first page or through secure online messaging.

Additional Notes and Definitions

Pricing and valuation. Securities are valued using closing prices from the primary market on the last business day of the period. Where a closing price is unavailable, a fair-value estimate may be used. Money market funds are valued at their stable share price.

Accrued income. Dividends and interest are reflected as income when paid or credited to the account. Accrued but unpaid amounts are not included in the income totals until received.

Corporate actions. Stock splits, mergers, spin-offs, and similar events are processed as they occur and may adjust your share quantities and cost basis. Such adjustments are reflected in the holdings and tax-lot detail.

Dividend reinvestment. When enabled, distributions are used to purchase additional shares, increasing both your share quantity and your cost basis. Reinvested amounts remain taxable in the year received.

Asset allocation	The mix of asset classes in your portfolio, such as equities, bonds, and cash.
Concentration	The degree to which your portfolio is invested in a single security or sector.
Expense ratio	The annual cost of a fund expressed as a percentage of assets.
Time-weighted return	A performance measure that removes the effect of cash flows into and out of the account.

This concludes your annual brokerage statement. Please retain it with your records. Meridian Brokerage Services LLC is a member of FINRA and SIPC.
