Tax Treatment and Reporting of Savings Bond Interest

Interest on Series I and Series EE savings bonds is subject to federal income tax but is exempt from all state and local income taxes.

Under the cash method of accounting, you generally report the interest in the year the bond is redeemed or reaches final maturity, whichever is earlier. The total interest reported for the redeemed bonds is shown in Box 3.

If you previously chose to report interest annually under the accrual method, report only the interest accrued after the last year you reported. Account records indicate the cash method has been used for these bonds.

The interest may be excludable from income if the bonds were used to pay qualified higher education expenses and you meet the requirements of the education savings bond program. See the discussion of Form 8815 that follows.

Report the Box 3 amount as interest income. Treasury interest is not eligible for the reduced qualified-dividend tax rates.

Education Savings Bond Exclusion (Form 8815)

The education savings bond exclusion allows certain taxpayers to exclude savings bond interest when the proceeds are used for qualified higher education expenses in the same year the bonds are redeemed.

The exclusion is phased out at higher levels of modified adjusted gross income and is not available to taxpayers whose income exceeds the annual limits.

Account records do not indicate that redemption proceeds were applied to qualified education expenses for the year; no Form 8815 exclusion has been reflected in this statement.

If you believe you qualify for the exclusion, consult Form 8815 and its instructions and your tax adviser.

Instructions for Recipient

Box 1. Shows taxable interest other than U.S. savings bond and Treasury interest.

Box 3. Shows interest on U.S. Savings Bonds, Treasury bills, Treasury bonds, and Treasury notes. This interest is exempt from state and local income taxes. This amount may be subject to backup withholding.

Box 4. Shows backup withholding or other federal income tax withheld. Include this amount on your income tax return as tax withheld.

Reporting. Report the Box 3 amount as interest income on your federal return. If your total interest requires it, complete Schedule B.

Recipient TIN. For your protection, this statement may show only the last four digits of your taxpayer identification number. The payer has reported your complete number to the IRS.
