Q2	30.11	60.11
Q3	30.21	90.32
Q4	29.68	120.00

Annual Percentage Yield (APY) Methodology

The annual percentage yield reflects the total amount of interest that would be earned on the principal over a 365-day period at the stated periodic rate, assuming interest remains on deposit. Interest is calculated using the daily balance method, which applies a daily periodic rate to the collected balance in the account each day.

Interest begins to accrue no later than the business day the institution receives credit for the deposit of non-cash items. The rate and APY may change at the institution's discretion as disclosed in your account agreement.

Backup Withholding Information

Backup withholding may apply to interest payments if you do not provide a correct taxpayer identification number (TIN), if you fail to certify that you are not subject to backup withholding, or if the IRS notifies the payer to withhold. When backup withholding applies, the payer withholds at the statutory rate and reports the amount in Box 4.

For the period covered by this statement, no backup withholding was applied to your account, and Box 4 reflects a zero amount.

To prevent backup withholding, ensure the institution has a current and correct Form W-9 on file certifying your TIN and exempt status, if applicable.

Information Reporting & FATCA

Financial institutions are required to report certain interest income to the Internal Revenue Service. The amount in Box 1 has been reported to the IRS. Retain this statement with your tax records.

The FATCA filing requirement box is not checked for this account. This account is not maintained by a foreign financial institution subject to chapter 4 reporting.

Interest Income — Frequently Asked Questions

Do I need to report this interest?

Taxable interest is generally reportable on your federal income tax return for the year in which it was credited to your account.

Why did I receive this form?

Payers issue Form 1099-INT when reportable interest of $10 or more is paid to an account during the calendar year.

What if my information is incorrect?

Contact the institution promptly if your name, taxpayer identification number, or any amount appears incorrect so a corrected form can be issued if needed.

When is the form issued?

Forms are generally furnished to recipients by January 31 following the close of the calendar year.
