Qualified Default Investment Alternative (QDIA) Notice

If you do not provide investment direction, your contributions are invested in the plan's Qualified Default Investment Alternative, the Ridgeline Target Date fund closest to your projected retirement year. You have the right to direct your investments among the plan's options at any time without restriction or penalty, subject to any fund-specific trading policies. You currently have active investment elections on file, so the default does not apply to your contributions.

Plan Governance & Participant Rights

The UW 403(b) Supplemental Retirement Program and the Wisconsin Deferred Compensation 457(b) Program are governed by their respective plan documents and applicable law. As a participant, you have the right to receive plan information, to direct your investments among the available options, and to designate beneficiaries. Spousal-consent rules may apply to certain distributions and beneficiary designations. If you believe an error has occurred, contact Participant Services; the plan maintains a claims and appeals procedure described in the plan documents, which are available on request.

Important Plan Information

Required minimum distributions (RMDs). You are not yet subject to required minimum distributions. Under current law, RMDs from these plans generally begin at age 73. We will notify you as you approach the applicable age.

Loans and withdrawals. The UW 403(b) program permits certain in-service withdrawals and loans subject to plan rules; the 457(b) plan has its own distribution rules. Early distributions may be subject to income tax and, in some cases, an additional tax. Contact Participant Services before initiating a distribution.

Rollovers. Your Rollover IRA holds funds from a prior employer's plan. Keeping amounts in separate plan types may preserve certain distribution and creditor-protection features; consider your options carefully before combining accounts.

Statements and corrections. Review this statement promptly and report any discrepancy. Unit values are determined at the close of each business day. Past performance does not guarantee future results, and the value of your investments will fluctuate.

Glossary

Elective deferral. A pre-tax contribution you choose to make from your pay to a 403(b) or 457(b) plan, subject to annual IRS limits.

Defined-benefit plan. A pension that pays a formula-based benefit at retirement rather than providing an individual account balance.

Vesting. Your nonforfeitable right to the benefits you have earned.

Expense ratio. The annual cost of owning a fund, expressed as a percentage of assets, deducted from fund returns.

Target-date fund. A fund that automatically adjusts its mix of investments to become more conservative as a target retirement year approaches.

How to Read This Statement

Your statement opens with an Account Summary across all plans, followed by your holdings, your 2025 contributions, and a transaction-level activity detail. Performance is shown both for the funds you hold and as your personalized rate of return. The fee sections describe the costs that reduce your returns. Review your holdings, contributions, and beneficiary designations, and contact Participant Services with any questions or to update your elections.

Prospectus & Disclosure Availability

Before investing, consider each fund's investment objectives, risks, charges, and expenses, which are described in its prospectus or disclosure document, available at ridgeline.net or by calling Participant Services. Guarantees provided by the TIAA Traditional / Guaranteed option are backed solely by the claims-paying ability of the issuer. Investment options are neither insured nor guaranteed by the FDIC or any government agency and may lose value. The plan's summary plan description and the annual fee disclosure required by Department of Labor regulations are available on request.

Planning for Retirement

A periodic review of your savings rate, investment mix, and projected retirement income can help you stay on track toward your goals. Tools to estimate your projected monthly retirement income — combining your account balances, your Wisconsin Retirement System pension, and estimated Social Security — are available in the participant portal. Consider whether your current contribution rate and investment allocation remain appropriate for your time horizon and risk tolerance, and revisit your beneficiary designations after major life events.
